Searching for a document on your computer can take anywhere between a couple of seconds to a few whole hours, depending on the amount of data you keep on your PC. If you want to make sure that the lookup process takes as little time as possible, you can use a specialized application, such as Portable Hddb. A portable utility for quickly finding items on your PC Unlike Hddb, the portable edition does not require any installation, as it stores all its configuration files within the same folder as the executable. Also, you can carry the app on a removable USB flash drive and launch it only when you want to quickly locate a file on the local HDD. The graphic interface is not only intuitive, but also as minimalistic as possible, to ensure that you can focus on finding your data, without being distracted by redundant menus or buttons. Once you run Portable Hddb, you can create an index with all the items on your computer - even if this initial indexing might take some time to finish, all subsequent searches will be performed much faster. Find files and folders on fixed or removable drives Depending on the data you are interested in, you can rely on Portable Hddb to find files or directories, by simply entering the keyword. Alternatively, you can use wildcards, if you are not sure about the filename - the main window will instantly display a detailed list with all the items matching your criteria. You can also set Portable Hddb to show the folder sizes, alongside the full path and the last modified data for each record.

Export the file list to TXT for later analysis

Portable Hddb - looking for files on your computer -----

---- Portable Hddb is a program that allows you to look for items on your computer. But...
With Portable Hddb you can only find files on your computer. Files that you have downloaded from the internet, created yourself in your document editor, or moved from your other drives. Portable Hddb is looking for files on your computer, not the files you have downloaded from the internet or created in your document editor.

This means that your Portable Hddb cannot find your files. Look for a solution:

Portable Hddb contains a dedicated database that is filled automatically. All the files you have saved on your computer are added to this database and Portable Hddb can search for them. If you need to look for files you have not saved on your computer, you need to run Portable Hddb. For that, open the program, click on the button "Create a new search", and then type in the search criteria. If you need to search the files that you have downloaded from the internet, use the database that you have created in your browser. Click on "New search" This will start the searching for the files on your computer. It will take some time to complete the search and show the results.

2a) Create a new search

2b) Enter the search criteria 3) Successful search 4) Delete the search criteria 5) Search all your files, even the files you have downloaded from the internet or your other drives 6) Import the results from one of your browsers 7) Save all the files in a txt file for later analysis 8) Add files from your browser to the database and search them. 9) List the filenames, size, and size of the directories.

10) Export the filenames and directories to a txt file. Click on "Delete current search" If you want to save the search criteria, you can click on "Delete current search". Otherwise, click on "Quit".

What's New in the Portable Hddb?

This portable search tool will help you find any item on your PC.
This program includes a very easy interface that uses a simple text box where you can enter a search term and press the ENTER key to get all items which match. All the major file search features are available, including support for wildcards. Once you've found what you are looking for, Portable Hddb can export the file list to a TXT file which is very convenient for later data analysis.
