Field of the Invention This invention relates to a portable musical instrument, and particularly to a small but effective wind-or-string-playing musical instrument. 2. Description of the Prior Art Instrument-playing wind-blowing devices are known. The French Patent Application No. 77/30,777 filed on Aug. 29, 1977 and published in the bulletin of the European Patent Office as 94739 describes a wind-blowing device. The French Patent Specification No. 2,296,436 filed on Sept. 8, 1976 by the same Applicant of the above-mentioned French Patent Application No. 77/30,777 and published in the bulletin of the European Patent Office as 90226 and in the Belgian Patents Offices as 79-9543 also describes a wind-blowing device. These known instruments are provided with a support member of generally cylindrical shape, fitted with the body of a musical instrument, such as a brass or woodwind instrument, and with means for securing the musical instrument on this support member. The use of the known support members and securing means is specific to each musical instrument. They generally have the shape of a cylinder and they are meant to be used by unskilled persons or professionals who are able to manipulate the instrument relatively easily. The other hand, it is hard for such skilled persons to hold the instrument in position for a long time. The wind-blowing device has a tube with two or three openings which allow air to enter and to be expelled from the instrument through the openings. However, they do not have means for keeping the openings in the tube closed. Also, the openings are not suitable for blowing from the mouth. The present invention seeks to provide a portable musical instrument which can be used by a person having no particular skills and can be used with the mouth.Q: What point/tag to put on an image in a dialog?
