Swing Votele votes Swing vote Movie | Watch Online | Full Movies|Uncut|Dvd|Swing Vote Excerpt: "In one Republican district, the swing vote was the very conservative Republican Jim Ryan. Ryan lost the 1986 race for the Senate to Democrat Tom Daschle. "I don't know how many times that I was asked the question, 'How do you feel about the Congress?'" Ryan said. "It didn't seem to matter which party was in control, the Congress was in a state of paralysis. "The Congress was paralyzed, but it was a good thing for the country," Ryan said. "At least, it was a good thing for the country because we didn't have a military conflict." Excerpt: Then, there was swing state Virginia, where the 86th ballot wasn't even cast: Michael Balboni, a Democrat, was first on the ballot, but when a vote-countering Republican's name was not on the ballot, two Republicans were chosen by lottery|Swing Voter|j. Excerpt: In 2000, George W. Bush was first on the ballot and eventually beat John McCain, the Republican. "I would say, as far as swing voters are concerned, they can be swayed by a good candidate," Van Zandt said. "They're not very likely to get behind an ideology, they're just likely to get behind someone who will do a good job. Excerpt: "The swing state vote has become a political battleground, with Mitt Romney seeking a good showing in Pennsylvania's May 6 Republican primary to carry him over the finish line in the Republican presidential primary, and President Obama looking to retain the state's popular vote." Excerpt: In the swing state of Ohio, the winner will take the state and the Democrats hope to hold the White House, but the populist Rev. John "Chuck" Jackson is convinced the president's moral compass is flawed. "If we don't run our own candidates, we're going to wind up with someone who's been elected to get away from God," Jackson said. "They won't have the character and moral courage to do what's right for us." Excerpt: "The only things that can swing it for one party are an economic crisis, a war, or a catastrophe, something that would make the average person feel so passionately about a party that they would get behind its candidate," Balz said.
