Q: How can I replace numbers with punctuation in strings using PHP? I'm trying to replace numbers with punctuation, so I can take numbers out of URLs. I'm doing it in PHP using the following: `$originalString = '26.19.128.229'; $result = preg_replace('/\d+/', '.', $originalString); echo $result;` I don't understand what I'm doing wrong, it's just returning the string with the number and not the

A: Try this instead: `$originalString = '26.19.128.229'; $result = preg_replace('/\d+(?=\.)/', '.', $originalString);` This searches for numbers that immediately follow a dot. Note that if the dot is actually part of the number (or the string) this regex might not be able to find it. It might not be what you want, but it's something to consider.
