Category:Wireless networking Category:Windows security software Category:Wireless security that an employee in a company is excluded from coverage where the employer has attempted to exclude coverage, the employer is not to be permitted to escape the duty to defend or to profit by its own wrong in this regard. Id. at 803, 58 Ill.Dec. 667, 430 N.E.2d 993. Borders contends that the Travelers policy at issue in this case unambiguously excluded coverage for the type of injuries suffered by Lindsay. The policy at issue in this case was a commercial general liability policy. This policy included broad coverage of both bodily injury and property damage. The only exclusions from coverage for bodily injury and property damage were a premises exclusion and a comprehensive general liability exclusion. These exclusions state that the insurance policy does not apply: a. to bodily injury or property damage arising out of: 1. the ownership, maintenance, use, loading or unloading of: (a) automobiles or motorized land conveyances; (b) aircraft; (c) watercraft; (d) recreational motors or other motors; or (e) trailers; 2. premises or operations not owned or rented to you; 3. premises alienated or made vacant by you; or 4. property in the care, custody or control of any insured. Borders asserts that these exclusions, when read together, excluded coverage for the type of injury suffered by Lindsay and are enforceable. Although this court agrees that the above exclusions and the language of the policy are clear and unambiguous, it disagrees that they exclude coverage in this case. In this case, it appears that the carjacking occurred on property owned by neither Borders nor Debtor but on property rented by Borders. Borders argues that the rental car was property owned by Borders because it was rented and, as a result, Borders' general liability coverage excludes coverage. Although Borders' argument that the rental car was property owned by Borders is persuasive, Borders' premise that the general liability coverage excludes coverage is incorrect. In the policy in this case, general liability coverage states: 2. COVERAGE a. We will pay those sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages because of "bodily injury" or "property damage" to which this insurance applies. We will have the right and duty to defend the insured against any "suit" seeking those damages. b. This insurance 2d92ce491b
