When I use the following codes, no issue. $this->load->library('encrypt'); $this->load->library('encrypt/decrypt'); $this->load->library('encrypt/hash'); $this->encrypt->encode('random_name', 'key'); The result will be encoded. But the problem occurs when I try the following. $this->load->library('encrypt'); $this->load->library('encrypt/decrypt'); $this->load->library('encrypt/hash'); $this->load->library('encrypt/base64_encode'); $this->encrypt->encode('random_name', 'key'); $base64 = $this->encrypt->decode('base64'); The output is empty. Can anyone explain, what is the issue here? A: Your base64_encode() function is likely returning false. Try using get_base64() instead: $base64 = $this->encrypt->decode('base64'); Q: I keep getting this "Not supported if a matcher is used" error from Python's re module I'm trying to parse out coordinates from a set of XML tags using the re module.
