Medical and health vocabulary. By Ultralingua (French - English). The Perfect Teaching Assistant. A Vocabulary Tool for Teachers. For native and non-native speakers alike. 4,000 words and expressions (Medical Dictionary) The Perfect Teaching Assistant. The Perfect Teaching Assistant is the only vocabulary teaching application that recognizes, analyzes and understands the correct usage of verbs and grammar, translates and transforms them into flash cards, extracts from the target language the key words and expressions students need to know, and then generates randomized flashcard sets with a custom soundfile. It allows teachers to create flashcards, and then review them using animated full-screen flashcard view. It allows users to conjugate any verb by using any form of a word when searching - from subjunctive to feminine plural. The application allows users to create flashcards, add illustrations, practice pronunciation, read and write their vocabulary, create their own languages, translate numbers and letters into text, find the meaning of a word in context, correct or translate their input, and use the dictionary in various ways. Perfect Teaching Assistant provides vocabulary for both native and non-native English speakers. The dictionary is bilingual, with English and French text, and has a French-English advanced thesaurus. A visual thesaurus makes searching easier. Pronunciation Practice The application is a full-screen flashcards app with animated images. It allows teachers to create flashcards, review them using animated full-screen flashcard view, and select the level of difficulty of the flashcards. Flashcard Sets Perfect Teaching Assistant offers users the ability to create their own sets of flashcards. They can be of all or any type of word, from basic to advanced. Randomized Flashcard Sets The app provides users with a variety of randomized sets, created at random, for vocabularies of any size. Flashcards Tutorial Perfect Teaching Assistant offers users the ability to create their own tutorial. This way users learn how to create flashcards, how to review flashcards and how to organize their vocabulary. The flashcards and the tutorial are organized in levels, allowing users to start with the most basic cards and progress to more difficult ones. Dictionary Perfect Teaching Assistant offers the user dictionary. It allows users to translate words from one language to another and find the meaning of a word in context. Translation The application can translate words from any language into any other language, by changing the source word in the

Q: Frequency domain correlation I am using Matlab's correlation toolbox to do some data analysis. One of the problems I am facing is the answer from the correlation function is not what I expect, in some instances the answer is negative. To clarify my question, here is an example from a simple gaussian white noise. Question 1: Why is the resulting correlation coefficient negative? Question 2: If the correlation coefficient is negative, do I still use the correlation toolbox to do my analysis? I will be very thankful if someone can give me some insights. A: The output of the correlation() function uses the correlation between the 2 vectors. So if the result is negative it means that the correlation is inverse to what you expected, and the vectors are actually anti-correlated. In your case you seem to have a perfect correlation between your vectors. Thus you should check your matlab version. If your vectors are not correlated, then the correlation coefficient will be positive.

Q: What is the difference between JDK, JRE, and JVM? I have never actually used the term "Java Virtual Machine", so I want to learn what that means and how it is different from the "Java Runtime Environment" and the "Java Development Kit". A: A Java Virtual Machine is a process that will interpret Java bytecode and load your programs. It will also run them. Java Runtime Environment is a subset of the Java Virtual Machine, which is a process that allows the virtual machine to run your programs. It will load a JVM to the memory and it will run your programs. You can find an overview here. The Java Development Kit (JDK) is the toolkit that you'll use to create your own virtual machine. You can find an overview here.
