Thank you very much for your kind help :) A: You probably downloaded a cracked version of Revit on your computer. Search your registry for the following keys: HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Classes\Revit.Internal\Settings
HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Classes\Revit.Xcfx\Settings These keys contain the Revit Serial Number and the Revit version. Remove these keys (so they do not continue to be used by Revit) and then start Revit: Revit should ask you for a serial number and then load the correct version. I found this thread when searching for a solution to the same problem. Some other possible solutions are: File a support request with Autodesk Try to rename or delete Revit if it's not starting anymore A: I just did a fresh install of Revit, and the problem went away. It was probably an error with the install, so I'm not too bothered by it. I installed the update KB3178685 today, and I was successfully able to log in to Windows 10 desktop with normal credentials. But after doing this several times (until I found a safer way to "uninstall" all the updates), I couldn't log in anymore (both with new credentials, as well as with the ones I have been using for a while). It asks for the Windows Live or Microsoft account, when I log in (and only if it's forced), but then freezes there - looks like it's trying to log in, but then it just freezes, and then sends me back to the login screen. So my question is - how can I fix this? I really need to log in with my account to work with my files. Any ideas? A: I'd try reinstalling WL again (or simply go to its website and log in and do what it tells you to do). WL has separate locations for the desktop client and for the web client. If you can log in to web client, it is possibly a client location problem. The other thing I'd try is to do an endpoint reset (as described here). If that doesn't work, the last thing to check is Logging Off while clicking Lock, and then Logging On from the same Lock screen again. If
