It offers the basic concepts of mathematical analysis, theory of functions of one and several variables, probability theory, mathematical statistics, and theory of random processes. The manual outlines all the sections of higher mathematics included in the course of mathematics for economic specialties Moscow: Prosveshcheniye, 2009. - 352 Ñ. The manual contains modern theoretical foundations and mathematical apparatus necessary to solve engineering problems. Given solutions to specific engineering problems and tasks for independent solutions. For students and teachers of technical and economic specialties of universities, as well as engineers and technicians. Contents: Mathematical Analysis. The limit of a sequence. The limit of a function. The derivative of a function. The study of functions by means of derivatives. Functions of two variables. The derivative and the differential of a function of two variables. A function given by a formula is called differentiable on some interval if the derivative of this function on this interval is equal to the value of the function at . The derivative is equal to the increment of the argument, the increment of the function, or the differential of the function if it exists. The geometric definition of the derivative. The derivative of a function of a constant value is equal to the derivative of the function at an arbitrary point . If and , then .
