But there are small, beautiful, kind and good things too. On my walk through the neighbourhood today, I came across this little oasis. It really made my day. I wish I'd taken a picture of the sign this morning, but, it's gone now. It's a children's playground with a fascinating history. When the neighbourhood was first developed, the park was removed to make way for the Torrens Valley Golf Course. But, after the golf course closed, in the 70's, the City of Adelaide became interested in developing the area. They wanted to create a "Park Under The Hill", a place where families could enjoy fresh air and play. So, the Children's Playground, surrounded by a beautiful garden, was re-installed in 1983. It is home to a small café which is open on week-ends and some weekends in the summer. For the rest of the week, it's a tad quiet. Still, there are regular visits by friendly patrollers, who leave the park in a responsible manner each evening. It's also home to a small mammal colony - the Heater House. These little creatures are so cute. And, they're so well hidden away. If you spend any time in the park, you'll find them in the Heater House. This is one of the few quiet corners of the park. It's dark and quiet – except for the sounds of crickets and a scattering of cherry blossoms. But, the Heater House is quite beautiful all the same. A bright red, perched on top of a concrete column. Surrounded by a little courtyard garden. With little benches and a number of birdhouses. I
