

(AFP) (AFP) (AFP) (AFP) BEIJING (AFP) - China on Saturday condemned two major US aircraft carriers that arrived in the South China Sea, saying it was sending "a message" to a major US ally. "We oppose the US sending a warship to the South China Sea at a time when the regional situation is in flux," foreign ministry spokeswoman Hua Chunying told a briefing. "This is to send a message to a major US ally." China on Friday accused the US of stirring tensions after President Barack Obama's administration called off a planned US-China trade deal, saying it would not be signed before a new American president takes over in January. Last week, Beijing summoned the US ambassador in protest after he called Beijing's island building an "unwarranted military attempt to enhance its strategic position" in the area. The issue has been causing tension since US think tanks floated a report that said Beijing had built a huge array of military and radars on islands and reefs in the South China Sea. President-elect Donald Trump has suggested that a much bigger challenge for Beijing would be a trade dispute over Chinese imports, because his companies have gained billions of dollars in business with China. The US president-elect has long accused China of unfair trade practices, and has said he will label China a currency manipulator.
