So I want to simply to this from the command line, instead of going through Xcode or using the.xcworkspace file. I've tried this `$ xcodebuild -project myProject.xcodeproj -scheme myScheme clean build` I get an error error: error setting bundle ID for bundle'myProject' to 'com.my_company.myProject.build' Does anybody know how to solve this? A: As posted by @youknow.coding and mentioned in the comments, the problem was that I had the scheme name in the Bundle Identifier, instead of the project name. Q: Python - List appending and formatting New to python and having an issue with appending and formatting a list. I have a list of items that I am trying to format in a view file so that it is

I'm using SqlBulkCopy.WriteToServer method to insert a set of data from a DataTable. The thing is the connection I'm using has 1024 rows limit to connect. The question is, if this limit is exceeded, the SqlBulkCopy call will ignore it and send all the rows. My code is like this: DataTable dtTable = CreateDataTable(colNames); SqlBulkCopy bulkCopy = new SqlBulkCopy(myConn, 1024,SqlBulkCopyOptions.Default, null); bulkCopy.DestinationTableName = "dbo.myDestinationTable"; bulkCopy.WriteToServer(dtTable); The default value of 1024 is the value I need. But is there some way to make it ignore the limit? Like SqlBulkCopy.MaxColumnsPerRow = 1048576; A: I think you're looking for bulkCopy.BatchSize = dtTable.Rows.Count; A: I think you want SqlBulkCopy.BatchSize 3e33713323
