Using our countdown timers, time tracking, or calendar widgets, the LazyTimer plugin can help you to start and complete your daily routine faster and more efficiently. It makes your life easier with its functions, which can easily be added to any page and any post or article. With the built-in framework, the plugin allows you to start and stop multiple timers, timers that are added to the WordPress admin panel, timers that have been added through the "Timed Actions" widget, and timers that have been added by editing the theme. Using the plugin's options you can choose what time format you'd like to use, whether you want to use a set time interval, the current time, a particular date, or a date from a specific month, year, or week. In addition, you can set time range through the options menu, change your time units, and even add or remove timers. In the future, LazyTimer will support timers that you add using the Timed Actions widget or the LazyTimer plugin. You can choose which timer you want to add, and when you want to start it. What's New: Version 0.1.2 - 2015.04.04 Bug fixes Version 0.1.1 - 2014.03.19 Bug fixes Version 0.1.0 - 2014.02.17 Initial release Recent reviews I'm happy with it, but... 5 By lonewhok Good Work, but it lacks many things... 1 By Jesus It's good but can be better like an option to enable or disable, instead of [I know] or not [i know], [yes] or [no], by example is "Spam" by wordpress. Rating 5 of 5 Delayed support 3 By LORMEL I downloaded the plugin back in January. I ran into a glitch in my coding regarding a function to update and retrieve the data. Within a week I requested support. They contacted me twice and never responded. I contacted support again and it's been over a month and still no resolution. I can't use this plugin and have a problem I have to work around in order to get the website I'm on working correctly. It's been a month and a half. For a plugin that should be simple and easy to use
