INTRODUCTION Sonic Youth's true first-wave was slow to happen. By the end of the 1980s, the group had built a catalog of earwormed pop to rival the Beatles; their music was on billboards, TV and in movie theaters. But their success was underwhelming compared to that of Talking Heads and other bands of the era. After three consecutive studio albums in the early 1990s—1992's Daydream Nation, 1993's Daydream Nation and 1995's 3-D—SY disowned the concept of "albums" and then stopped recording. Their 1995 album Black Gold was their first to feature no new material and their last to include new songs until 2012's The Eternal. But the songs that had propelled the band from their Brooklyn base in the late '80s to global fame never really left them. It was a simple fact that their lyrics dealt with society, and thus, their audience; but there was a counterpoint between the band's public persona and the austerity of the music. In his review of the band's music, Greil Marcus noted that the band had been angry at the time they started and that's what they were still angry about. SY's lyrics were specifically angry, but there was an underlying hopefulness that prevented them from becoming bitter. How does that work? Recorded in the bedroom of drummer Lee Ranaldo's New York apartment, the twenty-one song record sounds like the group was making a comeback, but was really made in a domestic setting. Its claustrophobic sound is like old home recording. When SY decided to abandon the group's downtown lifestyle, they 77a5ca646e

At its simplest, it will allow users to adjust Mid/Side (cross-feed), which is a technique where the Mid and Side signals are made to trigger each other. Additionally, users will also be able to control the level of a specific frequency as well as the overall dynamics of the project. The dynamic EQing is accomplished by adjusting frequencies and dynamics. However, this is not what the plugin does. As stated, it is more of a compressor than a true equalizer.The University of Maryland at Baltimore will soon honor two alumni who have left a large imprint on the school. The university will honor Robert R. McCormick Jr., '63, with the

2011 Emeritus Achievement Award, and Dr. James L. and Betty M. Williams, '65, with the 2011 James L. and Betty M. Williams Distinguished Award, according to an announcement from the university on Tuesday. The two awards are presented to alumni who have become outstanding contributors to the university. The awards will be presented at a ceremony on May 7. According to the university, Mr. McCormick was a loyal alumnus and booster of the university, serving in various roles for 30 years. He served on the university's board of regents and was chairman of the board. Mr. McCormick also established the McCormick Center for Academic Success and the McCormick-Tawes Youth Leadership Institute and served as co-chairman of the Leadership Baltimore board. The university credited Mr. McCormick's work on the Leadership Baltimore board with the start of the commission that created the Baltimore National Heritage Area. Dr. Williams was one of the university's first academic leaders, serving as dean of the School of Medicine from 1972 to 1976. He is a member of the school's board of directors and was chairman of the board from 1975 to 1976. He was also president of the American Medical Association from 1990 to 1991. The Williamses have supported the university for more than four decades and donated $15 million in 2010 to support new and improved educational programs, athletics and other university programs, the university said. The family gave generously to the university, supporting a new science building, a new dental clinic and new dormitories at the School of Dentistry, and a new athletic building for the university's athletic teams. The winners were chosen by an advisory committee, which includes several of the university's leaders, and based on recommendations from the university's president, provost, chancellor and other leaders.An anonymous supporter donated a total of $245.15 in rewards to the Power Plant Minnesota fund for information leading to the arrest and conviction of two men who killed the man and abducted his wife.
