Since all you care for is a free / shareware video-editor, you can easily load the utorrent-p2p-portal archive up in any archive-manager, extract it and look at the "contents" folder (or whatever you want to call it) for your video-editor. You will get a directory with name "Video-Editor.app" - this is your application's file-name. Then do... (make sure to save your "contents" folder) sudo cp /content/org.macromedia.java.plug-ins.vocal.eraser.unified2 \ /content/org.macromedia.java.plug-ins.vocal.eraser.universal2.i386 \ /opt/Video-Editor.app/Contents/Plug-Ins/ ... in an elevated terminal (ctrl+alt+t) and fire up your Video-Editor in /opt/Video-Editor.app. It should be pretty easy to find the video you want to fix, and the tool-bar there should give you the option to load that clip in the editor. This approach is therefore a bit safer than using ars, because you will directly load it and be able to choose to open the app without internet (i guess that's what you're using ars for anyway... and that's why ars is not safe, since they don't offer a way to load your video under OS). However, since you seem to be very concerned about your privacy and anonymity, I do not recommend you to try this. Note that you won't be able to do this when you have switched to battery-only mode - that's why you probably want to try ars. Anyway, this approach is what you were asking for - so here it is for you. Note: This should solve your issues, however I would like to mention that this scenario is rather suboptimal in my opinion. Since you are

My boss told me to not judge my work by the way it looks like, but instead to judge it by the output result, and by the years you spent on the work. Then, I suddenly remembered something (that they teach us at school). Back then, I had a teacher who said: "Strasbourg is like a city of flowers, she never be a good city if she's not full of flowers. " And, maybe she was trying to say something else. I remember her words because they have stuck in my head ever since. When I feel down, I take a step back from everything and observe the world around me, as if from a distance, and take in all the colors.
