Multiplexer is a tool that can be used to record audio and video streams. Recorded files can be played by DoublePlay multi-media player as a playlist, stored on your computer or connected to your TV/Stereo system or broadcasted to a streaming site. The software can support all standards (MP2, MP3, AAC, WAV, AVI, FLAC, WMA, OGG, MKV, M4V, 3GP, 3GPP) and any audio resolution (PCM, AAC, AC3, ALAC, WMA, OGG, FLAC, MKV, WAV, M4A, AAC, MPEG-4,...). Moreover, the tool supports multi-media streaming. The videos are broadcasted as a stream and the audio is added to it. This allows you to broadcast a video you have recorded with your webcam. The audio can be added from any audio source (M4A, MP3, MP4, WMA, AAC, AC3, ALAC, WAV, OGG, FLAC, FLAC,...), or from its own file. There is no such a tool that offers such a large number of features, see the description for details. Duplicate videos (fragments) from one video file to another video file. This method is best used when you want to create a video from several fragments of one video file. For example, you can put the first 2 minutes of the video and the last 2 minutes together and create a video with 50 minutes length. This is better than putting all the fragments together, because there can be some overlapping of the frames. By using this technique, you may get a longer video than you could by simply merging all the video fragments together. Video files may contain several fragments. Another example is to put a video that has a little bit of sound and add another video with a more interesting sound to it. Duplicate videos (fragments) from one video file to another video file.
