Re: Re: No Mosquito Full Crack Thanks for your feedback. Maybe it's a bit early but I will try to upload the source for a No MosquitoOS version in the next days. The developers of the application has tried it with several different computers, not only mine. Re: Re: No Mosquito I bought one of these. At first it worked great, but after a month it doesn't work so great anymore. There are always at least one or two mosquitoes trying to enter. Maybe I need to clean or maybe my computer is not used to it. Any ideas? Re: Re: No Mosquito @Guest You should have a look at NoMosquitoOS. It is a program that does not need a license and it can be used as long as the user uses it within a zone of about 5km radius. There are many ways to use this software and all have their specific advantages and disadvantages. Re: Re: No Mosquito I have a problem with this. I live in Brazil and here, there are no mosquitoes and there are no adults or the ones you can find are very young, and because of this I have no mosquitoes in my house. But, on another place of my house I have a lot of mosquitoes and they are very big and really annoying. It's not that I really care about them, but is very annoying for me. Also, I have no idea how to program. When I click on the second button, the sound of my computer becomes very loud and it sounds like it is starting to be more loud. Re: Re: Re: No Mosquito Mosquitos have pretty sensitive ears, so it's possible that it's their hearing and not the computer's, that's why you don't see them in the house. And you really have to understand that there's only a single button, so you either need to get the signal or you don't. You may have to go for a set of repellers or whatever to be effective. @Guest A couple of years ago, there was a program for Windows, that let you mute your speakers and only hear the beeping sound of the speakers. It really worked and it could be used with a Windows XP or later version. And it wasn't expensive, maybe around $10. If you go to the Amazon store,
