I'll give you a hint: it's not the Pittsburgh Penguins. No, the Penguins won this round, yet they still had to clear a few obstacles for the Rangers to be on their way to the Stanley Cup Final. First, the Rangers needed to get past the Ottawa Senators. Now the Rangers are heading to the final four, where they will face the Anaheim Ducks. For the Ducks, this is their third appearance in the Stanley Cup Final. The last time Anaheim reached the Stanley Cup Final was back in 2007 when they lost to the Detroit Red Wings. The Ducks have a storied history in the Final, and they'll need to have their best game to get by the Rangers and moving on to the next round in the playoffs. What's at stake? Although the division is back in the hands of the Pittsburgh Penguins, the Eastern Conference is a big battle with the Rangers are able to take down the Ducks, they would have a three-game lead over the Pittsburgh Penguins in the Eastern Conference. That would give the Rangers a decent lead on the Penguins heading into Game 3, that could mean the Rangers needed to complete the sweep at 570a42141b
