Q: What happens if a user without the permission to edit or delete a document is editing or deleting a document I just want to know what would happen if a user without the permissions to edit or delete a document was editing or deleting a document. I am using Document Server 3.6.0 and Documentum 8.5. A: If the user has permissions to edit/delete, they will simply continue to edit/delete. If the user does not have permissions to edit/delete, they'll get an error: ERROR_NO_PERMISSION_CHECK with the failed action as the specific action causing the permission check failure. You can determine which action failed by checking the reason value in the exception exception. Most likely reason value is "MODERATE_DOCUMENT" If the user attempts to moderate a document, the document is not affected. Other reason values are: "HOLD_PERMISSION" This indicates the user is unable to moderate the document because they do not have permissions to moderate the document. "MODERATE_DOCUMENT" The document is moderated but the user was not given the permissions to do so (see the reason code). "NO_MODERATION_PERMISSION" The user does not have the permissions to moderate the document. "MODIFY_DOCUMENT" The user does not have the permissions to modify the document. If the user gets no error, they will be shown a success page. A: The user gets an error. You can determine which error occurred by checking the error message in the exception. The most common error messages are: Documentum.Document.MODERATE_DOCUMENT Documentum.Document.EXTERNAL If you want to let them continue on with no error, just check the reason. In the case of the MODERATE_DOCUMENT error, the reason can be found in the exception's cause property. throw new DocumentumException('ERROR_NO_PERMISSION_CHECK', 'org.documentum.common.errorcodes.ErrorCode', 'XX000', 'MODERATE_DOCUMENT', 'You do not have sufficient permissions to moderate the document'); A: In addition to the other answers,
