A new PSA Patch has just been released from Adobe which has been given the rather unofficial title of PSA 2013. The patch is said to provide "PSA 2013 stability and compatibility improvements" and brings "PSA 2013's On Demand feature to the fore, including the ability to manage multiple projects and stage clips for the creative process". The update also includes "a number of performance, stability and bug fixes". You can find out more about this here: Back in the day when MS Access was the only Microsoft software people used, the MultiSelectList control was the tool of choice when adding multiple values to a field in an Access database. Sure, you could do this using a basic multi-select dropdown list, and there are times when that may still be a good choice but if you needed to keep the complexity and size of your Access database under control, then it can be pretty hard to keep it all nice and neat. The new MultiSelectList control in the form of MultiSelectList_2 contains a much more versatile and flexible data management package. MultiSelectList_2 has many more features than its predecessors including: Extended options – The available options are: AutoFilters, ClearFilters, InsertFilters, RestoreFilters, RemoveFilters Dynamic Data – Dynamic data means that the control repopulates itself based on the chosen options when accessed through the form. On-the-fly populating – When a row is added to the table, the control loads the data from the table. Hidden option set – The "Constraints" option is replaced by the "Hidden" option so that the user only sees the visible options Access tables in other databases – You can add tables from other databases to the table list by defining a server name. Row action options – AutoFill, Copy, Export, Paste, Delete, New, Duplicate
