It has 3 effects. Every gun has different options to configure and use. But some guns have a script for you to use and customize. These are the anti-recoil script. Many guns are very difficult to use. These guns have anti-recoil script to make it easier. Most guns have recoil. If you are new to a game, this gun will help you learn when to shoot, when to reload, and how to hold a gun. There are too many guns to learn. These are the anti-recoil script.

Q: Java Error: variable does not exist in this context I have written a function in a child class which returns the latitude and longitude of the business address based on the latitude and longitude coordinates of the business address (which is input via the getAddress method of parent class).

However, when I try to run the function I am getting an error that says "variable does not exist in this context". Can someone help?

//GetAddress function in Child class public double GetAddressLat(String address) { double latitude; double longitude; try { String lat = (String)
        InputReader.readString("lat"); String long = (String) InputReader.readString("long");
        latitude =
        Math.toRadians(Double.parseDouble(lat));
        longitude =
        Math.toRadians(Double.parseDouble(long));
        lat = lat * Math.cos(longitude) *
        Math.cos(latitude); long = lat *
        Math.sin(latitude) * Math.cos(longitude); lat
        += longitude * Math.sin(latitude); } catch (Exception e) { System.out.println("Error: "
        + e); } return
        (Math.acos((Math.pow(Math.pow((latitude +
        0.0001), 2) + Math.pow((longitude +
        0.0001), 2)) - Math.pow((latitude - 0.0001),
```
