My query list.add(new Student("C1", "C2", "C3")); list.add(new Student("C4", "C5", "C6")); When I print list[0] it prints C1, C2, C3, C4, C5, C6 But list.Length is only 6. Why does it return 6 when i get only 6 records? How can I get all those values? A: If you are interested in the length of the underlying collection of Student objects, you may want to use the LINQ Count extension method: var count = list.Count(); Q: Using internal_file_name as regular file name of the form my_task[i].txt, but I have not been able to find any explanation of how to do this, short of manually creating the file name in question. For example: task :some_task => :environment do Dir[Rails.root.join('db', 'posts','*.txt')].each do [fname] # How to generate actual file name (fname below) #write to it end end I have not been able to find a way to generate a file name doc515b9f4
