Not just another John Hickenlooper meme John Hickenlooper is winning the internet with a line of memes created on social media. The former governor of Colorado is taking aim at some of his challengers and creating some memorable ads. Joining Hickenlooper in the fun is Jim McDermott, a former congressman from Washington state who is challenging Hickenlooper for the nomination from the center-left. The two are on a mission to poke fun at their primary opponents to win the votes of progressives and centrists. Hickenlooper's biting campaign has taken on the internet. Appearing on a shirtless gym set and talking about his "groin the size of Texas," he has turned his body into his best asset. As for his Facebook ads, they're a far cry from what won him the governorship. His first ad for the race has an H-O-T sequence, with the message that "John Hickenlooper is hot." This one is hot. Just like his self-portrait as a raw, undressed meat lover, Hickenlooper has a zero tolerance policy when it comes to lying. His next ad is a spot in which he says he knows he can't win the nomination, but he's going to "try like heck." Hickenlooper's campaign says he's using humor to show that he's more than just another Democrat. "We know he's very popular and can't get hurt on the air, so we made him dance," said Dave Noonan, Hickenlooper's campaign manager. "Some will think it's almost offensive, but I'm saying to myself that this is a young man who has a new wife, and I don't want to mess that up." Hickenlooper first popped into the social media spotlight with a silly Snapchat video, dubbed the "Hickenlooper Rising" video. But now he's out with a campaign ad that almost couldn't be more serious. "We know the world is going to hell, and if you look around, you'll see why," the ad says. Noonan acknowledged that people have had to get used to

Matt Ryan The Falcons seemed to find a way to solve former Pittsburgh Steelers cornerback Darrius Heyward-Bey one on one in the game-winning drive on Sunday. The result was a touchdown catch from Justin Hardy to keep a four-point game to a three-point win over the Steelers. The Falcons have been struggling with consistency this season, and they are 0-3 in the postseason. The rushing attack has not been too productive, and the passing game has been hit and miss. Matt Ryan still has been great in this postseason, though, and he pulled another balanced effort out of his pocket to bring Atlanta past Pittsburgh 27-24 and into the NFC Championship Game. Ryan didn't throw for more than 275 yards in a playoff game all season until now. His TD toss to Roddy White was the difference maker on a 57-yard run, and both touchdowns came from Ryan scrambling. But he also had a throw to Heyward-Bey in the first quarter on the way to a 38-yard scoring play, and he completed two deep shots to White in the second quarter. Ryan completed 20 of 35 passes for 250 yards and a pair of scores. He also added 55 yards rushing on 10 carries, and the Falcons will make their third straight NFC title appearance next Sunday. ESPN.com studied every pass attempt from the Atlanta's game-winning drive and found three separate examples of Ryan trying to escape pressure -- and each attempt was successful. Ryan got the first play of the game off to a good start with a quick completion to Jacob Tamme on a play-action pass. It's a six-yard play for a first down. The next snap, Ryan has to scramble, but he steps up and finds White in the end zone. Ryan and the Falcons have a four-point lead in the fourth quarter with no time left on the clock. Ryan wants to check out of the game, but he's under no pressure and finds White for a two-point conversion. Ryan came out to the sideline in the fourth quarter with a 24-yard catch from White, but then Ryan took off running and got about 20 yards before throwing the ball away. Then after getting the ball to White, Ryan tries to scramble. Ryan runs for the end zone, gets a block from Deion Jones and then picks up the first down with a dive across the goal line. The Falcons will host the NFC title game next week.
