I don't like the idea of trading Michael Conway for Chris Volstad or Mike Pelfrey or Ron Guidry (all pitchers).... but I have no choice right now.... Not only would Volstad be 3 months away from being a leadoff hitter, but another hitter to replace HRod would take away some off the bench infield production for Chalmers. _____As of 10/16/07, Joe Sheehan is no longer a member of the Yankees' front office. †I have nothing personal against Joe Sheehan, and believe he is as intelligent and knowledgeable a person as anyone involved in baseball. - Billy Martin † I am not sure what you would trade for Pelfrey and Guidry....that is a no brainer. You trade for those two for what they can do for the Braves, and the added offensive firepower in the bullpen. If we traded for Pelfrey I like the idea of haveing him work a few games out of the bullpen, then come into the rotation to help out in a few weeks and close out games. I don't like the idea of trading Mike Pelfrey for Mike Fulmer. I have a hard time believing that Teheran is the next guy up. Is he really going to become Aaron Harang 2.0? Why not Volstad, who he said looked good? I think Pelfrey and Gidry are more unlikely options... Teheran doesn't have a track record, and he's going to be a more traditional ground-ball starter. He's already had some success this year. I think he'll follow his track record. Why not Volstad, who he said looked good? I think Pelfrey and Gidry are more unlikely options... Teheran doesn't have a track record, and he's going to be a more traditional ground-ball starter. He's already had some success this year. I think he'll follow his track record. I don't think there is a consensus for who the next guy is up. If the Braves sign a pitcher that doesn't have innings limits, then he could take the #5 spot or a 6th starter spot. I don't think Teheran is going to follow the Harang/Thornton track record. I don't think there is a consensus for who the next guy is up. Q: Checking error on cfmail in Coldfusion 11 using CAML I have a campaign that was developed in ColdFusion 11, but I am working on updating it to ColdFusion 9, I have gone throught the instructions from microsoft and come to the place where I am supposed to be setting the query in my code. When I do it, it generates a blank email, which is exactly what is happening in my code, no matter what the query is. I tried using cfmail with a placeholder value and it worked perfectly. Not sure where else I can get help at the moment. The query is, WHERE SELECT m.message_id FROM root.campaigns m WHERE m.name = '#ConvertToHTMLEncodedString(myVar)#' This should be correct, however it is not. Any ideas? Also, I have a working cfmail for email sending that I have updated to the latest version of CAML. EDIT: I forgot to mention it, but I have also tried " SELECT message_id FROM root.campaigns WHERE name = '#myVar#' " This threw an error that said object must be wrapped in an object. A: Looking at the logs, I see you've a circular reference in your query, which is causing an exception, and hence null pointer being thrown. If you can, debug your query and find out the actual SQL statement. CF 11.2.1.4 Lists and circular references Adding an OrderBy clause will make it work: SELECT m.message_id FROM root.campaigns m WHERE m.name = '#myVar#' ORDER BY m.id DESC Note that in a CF 9 version, you will have to use: ORDER BY RTRIM(m.id) DESC RTRIM() on a VARCHAR will remove any non-numeric characters from the right side. Q: Referencing a static method from another method in Java My code contains two methods with the same arguments, but I've not declared them static
