Top Ten Strategies for Creating a Record (2011) - badrabbit ====== blueatlas i love this list of strategies, but my two quick thoughts: 1\. You should never use a built-in.bz2 package instead of hand-writing .bz2. This may be the biggest single problem in the world of one-time-use exports, and you'd think since it's cost free that it'd be ubiquitous. But it's _not_. Anyone who's making a backup or archive knows that you need to manage it. If you hand-write.bz2 you just wind up doing it anyway, because some people are just really good at doing that. 2\. You need to build a pitti file which basically tells you what the metadata is - creation date, author, version, size, checksum, modification date, and size. Do this in two steps. First step is to decide what
