Author's Corner Friday, December 25, 2017 Review of Bifold Brights When I received a sample of Bifold Brights lip gloss in Punch, I didn't think it would be anything special. After all, it's a drugstore product, and drugstore products are cheap, so I had no expectations to meet. Despite this, I decided to give it a go because I always enjoy a good color, and the brand is one of my favorites. Cocoa is a brownish-beige that has a slightly reddish tone to it. It's a soft, buttery formula, and I like how it feels on. It has a few, seemingly small ingredients, such as a non-matte glitter, and a vitamin E derivative. Cocoa is a nice shade. It goes on evenly, and the consistency is soft. It does have a slightly dry texture, but it isn't at all uncomfortable to wear. However, if you want a gloss that's more glossy, I'd look elsewhere. The color itself is quite wearable. It's barely visible on my lips without a topcoat, and even with a coat, it does show up a tiny bit. Overall, I wouldn't hesitate to purchase this, but if you're looking for something more glossy, I suggest checking out Color&Co. Let me know if you tried this, or if it worked for you! Stores | Bifold Brights What are your thoughts on this product? Do you prefer more of a matte or glossy formula? It would be so nice if they made eyeshadow palettes smaller! Because of the way they're designed, you have to dip completely under the eye, but that can be a little inconvenient. So, if you're like me and have a smaller makeup collection, you have to add more to your collection. Which, of course, is when you have too many items already. I really like the colors too. Some times make it really hard to pick... I was so excited to see your review on this one! The brand has been my go-to for the matte formula and I've had such trouble trying to find a shade that matches my skintone! It's so nice to see you're on this one and hope they continue to stay put. Thanks for the recommendation!
