The cervical and occlusal effects of twenty complete dentures were studied by a systematical research. The follow-up was performed for two years. Two kinds of evaluation methods were used; one was the clinical method of patient's evaluation and the other was the method of analysis of the prosthesis as a whole and in function of the individual parameters of the dentures. The results were statistically analysed and a clear distinction between the cervical and occlusal effects could be established. key element in determining the value, it does not render the damage formula mere surplusage. Rather, "rental value" is an element the trier of fact may consider in valuing the property. This in turn may be considered when the trier of fact determines the property's fair market value. In other words, the damage formula is one way the State Board can establish the true fair market value of the property. See id. § 20.9-507. We conclude that the damage formula presented by SBC
