the terminal. There's also the screen command, which allows you to run a program at a specified time interval. If you want to run a screen for a given time, the command is as follows: `#!/bin/bash #... #... # if $this_var == true # then # /bin/screen -ls; /path/to/command # # command need to execute in a new terminal window # fi` If you want to run a screen for a given time, type `screen -ls`, in the present example, to know when the program screen will automatically shutdown. It will run until you enter `ctrl+a+d`. Q: How to query for multiple fields Let's assume I have a table that looks like this
