Q: Mysql - Create multiple lookup with conditions using join I have 3 tables: Table: Store

+------------+-----------+ | store_id | store_name |

+------------+-----------+ | 1 | A | | 2 | B | | 3 | C |

+------------+-----------+ Table: Product

+----------+--------+------+ | product_id | product | store |

+----------+--------+------+ | 1 | A | 1 | | 2 | B | 1 | | 3 | C | 2 |

+----------+--------+------+

Table: Store_Products

product_id	store_id	quantity
2	1	2
4	2	2
5	3	2

Now, my requirement is to find out the store_id for the product when the quantity is more than 1. So, for example: if i have a customer who purchased product 1 at store 2. And i want to display the store_id of store 2 so that i can enter it to the end client. i have done it using a select query, Linux Mac OS X Windows Release date: 07/19/2014 Sometimes it's too easy to forget that video games are just that: a game. They're not the Pixar films of the world and the spectacular scenery and impressive set design, the complexity of plot and narrative, are all there to simply entertain you. When the new Just Cause 3 pops up on your screen, you sit down and are immediately transported to a world of chaos. There's nothing more to it than that. Sometimes it's so fun that you simply forget about any sort of
