The adidas Originals adiZero 2017 in white is a glossy white color and the model features a rubber outsole made from material that is similar to the company's Clyde 2 silhouette. Nobody is in any real doubt about what we should do about climate change. Republicans and Democrats agree that we need to cut back on fossil fuels, and that we need to cut back on greenhouse gases. They disagree on how best to achieve those goals, and that's where the rest of the caucus comes in, but it's a long way from there to a deal. Yet there's

They were 7-0 and one win short of the College Football Playoff. However, the Cardinal, who were also a top-15 team in the AP poll, lost its next three games by a combined margin of 16 points. And while they were never really in any danger of getting knocked out, that final loss, against Cal, was their first loss of the season. In Week 6, Stanford is at home against Washington State, which has won three of its last four games. It's also No. 15 in the AP poll at the moment. So can the Cardinal turn things around and make some noise this week? Who Should We Start The Huskies are coming off their first win of the season. They defeated Eastern Washington 34-10 on Oct. 19. Quarterback Luke Falk has a lot to do with that, having thrown for 428 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran for a score. On the other side of the ball, defensive end Hercules Mata'afa forced a fumble in the third quarter and safety Delano Howell returned it for a touchdown. He had three tackles and a pass breakup in that victory. Against the Cardinal last season, the Huskies put up 38 points — the most allowed by Stanford in a game since 2009. However, the Stanford running backs have been ineffective offensively. They've combined for 29 yards on 18 carries against USC and 23 yards on 11 carries against Cal. The only good thing about Long's two starts was that he had his first career rushing touchdown. It was a five-yard strike in the second quarter of the Stanford loss. Okafor, who started at defensive tackle last season, isn't that type of player. He
