I know this is the right one, and my code is okay as you can see, because I am executing the right code, but is there an error with my code that I dont see? A: You should use

BufferedReader.readLine() or BufferedReader.readAll() to read from the stream which is returned by BufferedReader.read(): for (String line = br.readLine(); line!= null; line = br.readLine()) { if (line.startsWith("Vero") || line.startsWith("VERO")) { System.out.println(line); } } Additionally, you should check if the return value of readLine() or readAll() is null before you call it. If it is, you'll get an IOException caused by the stream being closed. You can also use `Scanner.nextLine()` or `Scanner.next()` without iterating to read the stream: String line = br.readLine(); if (line != null) { if (line.startsWith("Vero
