The New York Times reported, "Lora Levin, a Los Angeles-based Hellboy fan, was in her mid-50s, a mother of two college-age boys and a widow, when she hired a professional research team to track down Hellboy, in hopes that the movie would find its way to her. A team of telemarketers and an online scouring of the Internet produced no results, and she gave up. Two months later, Ms. Levin had a dream in which she was on a date with a handsome guy she had never met in her life, inviting her to a Hellboy-themed dinner party in downtown Los Angeles. The date was a convincing facade, and after the dinner party was over, the guy revealed himself to be an agent for a private investigative firm that specialized in tracking down Hellboy fans. 5ec8ef588b
