This version of Company of Heroes is a development release. It contains a number of bugs and may not be suitable for all game play experience. This is the first non-Steam version of the game and as such, there are many new features and UI changes we have not had the chance to complete. We're making a lot of changes, but to get things working right we might not have time to provide full support of the final game. As such, this build contains pre-alpha game play and may cause more bugs than you have had in the beta. If you experience a crash, please send an email to valor-support@valorgames.com so that we can work to fix things before the final game goes out the door. Thank you for your continued patience while we build Company of Heroes 2. :) Our goal with Company of Heroes is to deliver a game that resonates with an interactive period experience, and one that provides a rich gameplay experience that is both interesting and compelling. We're working on an advanced game engine, a very active modding community, a host of real and fictional technologies and historical settings and a lot of other features that we can't talk about right now. After the success of the Company of Heroes modding community and the critical and fan support of Company of Heroes World at Gamescom, we're working with them directly to deliver the "true" Company of Heroes experience. We're looking forward to working with the modding community, and delivering the best game we can in what we think will be a game of many years. The Company of Heroes 2 is for everyone, from the serious PC gamer to the casual mobile player. We are not just taking the Company of Heroes game and packaging it up with a few more maps. The new engine and game mechanics are deep enough that we think it will be something that can be enjoyed by everyone. Plus, with the modding tools we are looking for the core of the game to grow and expand very much outside of what you find in the original Company of Heroes. We want the player to feel like they are a part of something special and something different. We want to give the player complete control of the battles.
